LEWIS EXPLAINS

Declares Difference Exists Between Postalization and Government Owner hip.

Postalization of the telephone and telegraph is vastly different from the simple idea of Government ownership. Congressman David J. Lewis of Maryland told the members of the Washington Single Tax Association at their meeting last night at the Public Library, in explaining his bill. brary, in explaining his bill providing for operation by the postofflee of the telephone system of the District of Columbia.

Congressman Lewis cited the poalized telephone and telegraph sys tems of Germany as proof of the prac-ticability of similar operation in this ticability of similar operation in this country.

"Government operation under the postoffice in Germany," he said, "gives cheaper service in telegraphic and telephonic communication, because it does away with the establishment and maintenance of numerous competitive establishments, having added overhead expenses, which have to be paid for by the consumer. system of communication.
"In countries where the telegrap| is operated by the postal authorities

communication rates are as low as one-half and in some cases little more than one-fourth what they are in more than one-fourth what they are in this country. In Germany it takes 12 cents to send a message 190 miles, for which the charge in this country would be 25 cents. A message will go 200 miles at the same rate there, whereas it would cost approximately 40 cents over that distance here."

Defines Difference. Mr. Lewis explained that when he tween postalization and general Gov-ernment ownership of the telephone and telegraphic systems, he meant the difference existed between placing them under the postoffice and placing them generally under Government Peration.

"The Postoffice Department has The Postoffice Department has a certain morale and a certain system and experience. When we go to sleep tonight we know that department has a certain duty that it can be counted on with certainty to perency, and system is seen in the par-cel post system. Parcels which Con-gress estimated would cost 5 cents to transport, including carrier and carriage expenses, are now being car ried for slightly over 2% cents, ow ing to the excellent efficiency of that department."

Congressman Lewis told the single taxers the Government could place a phone in practically every house in the land by making contracts cailing for 600 calls per abnum at $1 per month. Extra messages, he said, so slowly that it is believed other methods will have to be used to obtain the 2 cents each above the $12 annual money pecessary to continue the main-tenance of the schools. Congressman Lewis told the single
